LOVEJOY MONUMENT MEETING.

This meeting took place last evening in accordance with the notice previously given and from the spirit manifested by those present we are satisfied the work will be prosecuted to a completion, on a scale which will suitably honor the heroic Lovejoy, and at the same time be creditable to the city, State and nation. There has been good and substantial reasons why it has not been done sooner, but those obstacles are now removed, and every thing appears to indicate that now is the time to push forward the work. Aside from the obligations which are resting on the citizens of Alton to move in this matter, we are satisfied that they could not invest their funds in any other public enterprise which would tend so much to the future prosperity and reputation of the place as in the erection of this monument. This city has suffered immensely from the fact of Mr. Lovejoy being killed in our midst, but we have always believed that public sentiment does us great injustice in this matter. The same result, at that time, would have taken place under the same circumstances, in almost any city in the country. Two or three presses had been destroyed in Cincinnati only a short time previous, and even in Boston, Garrison escaped the fate of Lovejoy only by the shrewdness and activity of a few of his friends. It was, it is true, a most infamous and damning outrage, but there were but comparatively few of our citizens who were directly engaged in the matter, and in our opinion it should be rather regarded as a crime of the times than one for which the citizens of Alton should be held responsible. But we thank God that the times have improved in this respect, and now that the nation has just washed its hands from the dark stain of human slavery, it is proper and fitting that the first man who fell a martyr to its hell-born cruelty, should be suitably remembered and honored.

In carrying forward this grand undertaking, we shall depend much upon the aid which a friendly press may extend; we therefore ask them to give this incipient organization a notice in their columns, and in a short time more definite information will be furnished the public in reference to the matter.

A MONUMENT TO LOVEJOY.

With gratification we find that an association is organized at Alton to raise a monument to the martyr Lovejoy. This work is scarcely more due to the memory of Lovejoy than to Alton and to the better spirit of the age. The Alton Telegraph well says that the murder of Lovejoy was a crime for which the spirit of that time, rather than the citizens of Alton, should be held responsible. The erection of a monument to Lovejoy will be an appropriate expression of the wonderfully changed state of public opinion since he was sacrificed by it, and the initiation of this tribute by Alton cannot fail to reflect well deserved credit upon that city.

ALTON, November 25, 1864.

Chicago Tribune

A meeting was held at Alton last night to form an organization for the erection in that city, of a monument to Rev. Elijah P. Lovejoy, who fell a victim to pro-slavery in that city more than twenty years since. It is fit that such a monument should be erected at that place.

ALTON, ILLINOIS, December 15, 1864.

At a meeting held in this city on the 25th of November, of persons favorable to the erection of a Monument to ELIJAH P. LOVEJOY, the undersigned were appointed a committee, with discretionary power, to take such steps as we might deem necessary to secure the permanent organization of a Monument Association.

In the prosecution of this purpose, we address this circular to the old friends of Mr. Lovejoy; to those who sympathized with his efforts to maintain the free discussion of Slavery; and to the crowd of witnesses who have risen in these latter days, to bear testimony against the sin and curse of our nation.

We appeal to you, whether old or new friends of the doctrine of Freedom for all men, to join us in the erection of a suitable testimonial to the memory of the "first American Martyr to the Freedom of the Press and the Freedom of the Slave."

It is proposed by the committee to call a meeting at Alton, about the first of February, of the friends of this enterprise at home and in other States, and to proceed to organize a LOVEJOY MONUMENT ASSOCIATION, with corporate powers and suitable officers; and then to proceed to execute the work in a manner worthy of its purpose.

Before taking further action however, we respectfully invite the counsel and co-operation of friends of the undertaking, and will be thankful to receive any suggestions by letter or otherwise, they may have to offer.

A Monument to Lovejoy.

With gratification we find that an association is organized at Alton to raise a monument to the martyr Lovejoy. This work is scarcely more due to the memory of Lovejoy than to Alton and to the better spirit of the age. The Alton Telegraph well says that the murder of Lovejoy was a crime for which the spirit of that time, rather than the citizens of Alton, should be held responsible. The erection of a monument to Lovejoy will be an appropriate expression of the wonderfully changed state of public opinion since he was sacrificed by it, and the initiation of this tribute by Alton cannot fail to reflect well deserved credit upon that city. In this connection the following proceedings of a meeting held at Alton, will be of interest.

LOVEJOY MONUMENT MEETING.—Pursuant to a public call, a number of citizens of Alton met at the Good Templars' Hall this evening, to consider the propriety of erecting a monument to the memory of Rev. Elijah P. Lovejoy.

A temporary organization was formed by the choice of L. A. Parks as chairman, and James Newman as Secretary.

W. C. Flagg moved that we proceed to take steps to form a "Lovejoy Monument Association," which was adopted.

Rev. C. H. Taylor moved the appointment of an Executive Committee of three, with discretionary power, who shall take such steps as they may deem necessary to secure the permanent organization of an Alton Lovejoy Monument Association, which was adopted, and Messrs. W. C. Flagg, L. A. Parks and M. G. Atwood were appointed such committee by a vote of the meeting.

ALTON November 25, 1864.

[From the St. Louis Central Christian Advocate.]

We are glad to see the citizens of Alton are making efforts to erect a monument to that most excellent man, Rev. Elijah P. Lovejoy. We hope they will succeed.—The whole people ought to unite in it, and if the men who are yet stained with his blood live, they ought to give; perchance God's curse may be averted by earnest penitence. We believe the Almighty has visited upon the city and the guilty parties his displeasure, and it is fitting that something be done to avert his wrath, and honor a good man whom wicked hands most cruelly, foully murdered.

Rev Levi Wilson Youngstown O.

Such is divine justice and retribution.— The children honor the men whom the fathers put to death. Historic justice, we believe, ought to be vindicated and the memory of the wicked held up to the public execration. American history has enough names blackening its pages; let vile men be warned. Justice will raise monuments to the martyrs of liberty, and pronounce anathemas on the heads of her betrayers.

[From the Springfield Journal.]

All friends of true liberty will rejoice to learn that the citizens of Alton are taking steps towards the erection of a monument to the memory of Rev. Elijah P. Lovejoy, who was murdered by the pro-slavery mob in that city in 1837. Mr. Lovejoy fell a victim to the fiendish malignity of a class of men who, for the last few months, have been claiming to be the especial defenders of freedom of speech and of the press, so far as they can be subverted to the interests of treason and rebellion, simply because he desired to exercise that freedom on the side of liberty and humanity. His murder cast a dark and indelible stain upon the escutcheon of our State. Now that the principles for which Lovejoy yielded up his life have triumphed, it is appropriate that some such recognition of his services should be made and that Alton should, where he suffered, take the initiative in the matter.

[From the Quincy Whig.]

A meeting has been held in Alton to form an association to erect a monument to the to Rev. Elijah P. Lovejoy, who was murdered in that city by a pro-slavery mob more than twenty years ago. Who could have been bold enough to predict such a result when the murder was perpetrated?

[From the Cincinnati Gazette.]

Last Friday evening some of the citizens of Alton, Ill., held a preliminary meeting for the organization of "The Lovejoy Monument Association," the object of which is to honor the memory of that distinguished martyr to the cause of universal liberty, the Rev. Elijah P. Lovejoy. The time of reproach for such men has passed, and now the people are free to do justice to those who, in the early period of the agitation of the nation's guilt, sacrificed so much even to life itself, in the cause of humanity and of their country. We shall watch with interest the progress of this Lovejoy Association, and hail with satisfaction the laying of the corner stone of the well merited monument.

We have been much interested lately in examining some documents connected with the Lovejoy riot of Nov. 7th, 1837, in this city. Also the indictment of Jehn Solomon and others for the riot—the full details of both are therein contained. [This was 'Alton Trials by Wm. S. Also the original of a commission issued to my brother on the night of the 6th of November, 1837, when the press was landed from the boat and stored, supposing that an attack might be made upon it that night, which had there been the result would have been far different. Also a hand bill, which was posted on my store door a few night subsequents."

Monument to Elijah P. Lovejoy.

The first American martyr in the cause of freedom for all men, was Elijah P. Lovejoy, who, more than twenty years since, having established a journal for the free discussion of the slavery question at Alton, in Illinois, was set upon by a body of ruffians from Missouri and slain. It is now proposed to erect at Alton a monument to his memory. A meeting was held at that place on the 25th of November, when Messrs. W. C. Flagg, L. A. Parks and M. G. Atwood, were appointed a committee to take the proper steps for forming a Lovejoy Monument Association.

The committee propose to call a meeting for this purpose at Alton about the first of February, and in the meantime invite those who regard the undertaking favorably to make, by letter, such suggestions as may occur to them.—N. Y. Evening Post.

The Post mistakes when it says Mr. Lovejoy was "set upon by a body of ruffians from Missouri and slain." This is not so. But while it is true, that the actors in that fatal tragedy were temporary residents of Alton, it is also true, that they were incited to the commission of the act, by inflammatory appeals from the press of Missouri.

The Killing of Lovejoy—A Gross Perversion.

[From the Alton Telegraph, September 1st.]

The St. Louis Democrat published some days since a grossly perverted statement of the circumstances connected with this deeply lamented affair, from the pen of a Mr. John G. Dill, who says he was an "eye-witness of the affair." We are well acquainted with the writer, and from our own personal knowledge know that he might have claimed a much closer connection with the active participants on the outside of the building, than a mere "eye-witness of the affair," with a great deal more truth than there is contained in any of the statements he has made in his communication. It was a matter of some astonishment to us to see these grossly incorrect and unjust aspersions cast upon Mr. Lovejoy and his friends, in the columns of a paper conducted with so much ability and fairness as the Democrat, but had the publication of the article stopped there, although we regretted the wide circulation it received through that channel—we should have kept silent. But instead of that being the case, we find the article copied by many of the papers in this section, opposed to universal freedom and human progress, which makes it obligatory on us, as one of the surviving friends of Mr. Lovejoy, to pronounce the whole statement as false and most grossly perverted from beginning to end. It is just such a representation, however, of the circumstances in the case as might be reasonably expected from one who had given his warm sympathy and active encouragement at the time to those engaged in the mob.

As we have not the leisure at this time to give a full history of the lamented affair as it actually occurred, we would remark to all interested, that in all essential particulars, they can find the facts in the case by consulting either of the following works:

Beecher's History of the Alton Riots; the History of the Alton Trials, by Wm. S. Lincoln, Esq.; the Biography of Elijah P. Lovejoy, by his brothers; or the American Conflict, by Horace Greeley.

We were intimately associated with Mr. Lovejoy from the time he issued the first number of the Observer in St. Louis, until the day of his death, and have had, therefore, a good opportunity of knowing all about the matter.

The material facts connected with Lovejoy's martyrdom, so often have they been examined, are settled past controversy. Mr. Dill's bias seemed to us so evident as to be quite harmless, and we published his statement for its details, which, true or otherwise, could not affect the merits of the case, yet had apparently historic interest, especially as given over his own name and with the claim of an eye witness. We cannot see how fairness would "rule out" the testimony of a witness thus coming forward. To our mind, Mr. Dill's apologetic account of the outrage is the strongest confirmation, were confirmation needed, that Lovejoy was atrociously murdered solely for exercising the rights of a citizen and discharging his duty as a Christian man.

Letter from E. P. Lovejoy.

We have been furnished by Dr. A. Nichols, of this city, with a copy of the following letter from the Rev. E. P. Lovejoy, written a short time previous to his murder in Alton. It is postmarked Alton, Ill., Oct. 5, and addressed to H. H. Snow, Esq., or Rufus Brown, Quincy, Ill. The original is now in the possession of Dr. Nichols, by whom it is preserved as a relic of the days when the discussion of slavery was far less free than now, and when the term "abolitionism" was anything but a passport to popular favor or not altogether conducive to personal safety. The allusion in the letter to the Quincy brethren knowing how to manage mobs will recall to the memory of some of the older inhabitants of the city a series of events in which the protection of Dr. Nelson, of Missouri, from the vengeance of a slavery mob made some of our citizens leading actors, and decisively and permanently settled the question of freedom of speech in this locality. The convention to which these men of nerve and faith were invited, decided upon continuing the publication of Mr. Lovejoy's paper in Alton, and it was in sustaining this decision that Mr. Lovejoy sealed his devotion to a holy cause with his blood.

The undersigned, appointed a committee to take such steps as might be deemed necessary to secure the organization of an Alton Lovejoy Monument Association, believing the time has now arrived when the work may be properly commenced and carried out, would respectfully invite the citizens of Alton, and all others who desire to render appropriate honors to the name and fame of ELIJAH P. for the purpose of forming a permanent organization under the general law of incorporations, electing officers and transacting such other business as may be brought before the meeting.

The committee would add that they have ascertained that a suitable spot can probably be secured on the new Cemetery grounds as the site for the monument at such a point as to be a prominent object of interest to strangers approaching the city by railway or river.

They have farther ascertained that Wendell Phillips, whose services in the cause of Universal Liberty, began where Lovejoy's ended, will, if desired, pronounce a suitable oration at such time as may be selected by the association.

They would recommend, finally, that Thursday, the 7th day of November, 1837, being the thirtieth anniversary of the death of ELIJAH P. LOVEJOY, be the day fixed upon for the laying of the corner-stone of the monument, and that all preliminary action be taken with reference to that date.

ALTON, Oct. 4, 1837.

To the Beloved Brethren of Quincy:—

Dear Brethren: Before this reaches you the call for the convention will have been received. And what I wish to say now is, that every abolitionist in Adams county ought to attend if he possibly can. All depends upon having a full, a GREAT Convention. Otherwise, if we get but 50 or 100 together, it will be labor lost, and worse than lost. Our enemies will triumph and our friends will be disheartened. And besides, I have little doubt we shall be mobbed, or at least that an attempt will be made to do it. Now the Quincy brethren know how to manage mobs. We want them here, all of them. Will not some of you see the brethren in the county and urge them to come? If any are so poor as not to be able to pay their expenses, let them be paid for them. Come up brethren; come up; in the name of God and for the sake of humanity, of religion, come up to the convention.

You have heard that our new press has been destroyed. I shall send for another one to morrow. But seeing our brethren here are so timid, I propose to leave the question of its location unsettled till the convention shall decide. I have just escaped from St. Charles, Mo., from the fury of a mob, thankful that my life is spared. You will see an account of it in the Telegraph of to-morrow, and a more full detail in the Emancipator. I know not, dear brethren, if I am to live or die, but I know that God reigneth, and that the cause for which I suffer cannot be put back.—Its march is onward, onward to triumph, complete and permanent.—Pray for me, dear brethren. My trials are sore, and yet I am wonderfully, wonderfully supported amidst them.

The Lord is faithful. Bless his name.

Your affectionate brother,

DESIGN OF THE LOVEJOY MONUMENT.—Mr. C. G. Volk, the well-known sculptor, of Quincy, was in our city yesterday, and attended the meeting of the Lovejoy Monument Association. He also went out to the cemetery and viewed the proposed site of the monument, with which he expressed himself highly pleased. Mr. Volk intends to furnish a design for the monument, at an early day, for the inspection of the directors and his object in visiting Alton was to view the proposed site, and gain such information as would assist him in maturing his conception of the subject.

This gentleman has recently finished a pencil sketch of his design for the Lincoln Monument, which is thus described by the Springfield correspondent of the Chicago Tribune:

"C. G. Volk, of Quincy, has been exhibiting to the members of the General Assembly, to-day, a design for the Lincoln Monument, which attracts much attention. He calls it the Lincoln Star Monument. Its foundation is a five pointed star, sixty feet in diameter; a second star or balcony fifty feet from the ground, supported by five columns, on which are perched five eagles. On the front of the balcony stands a statue of Mr. Lincoln, with the Emancipation Proclamation in one hand, while with the other he is uniting Union and Liberty with a wreath of evergreens. Below the balcony is the tomb for the remains. The form of the shaft is a pentagon, rising 126 feet from the ground to the summit. On the summit is the figure of America, holding an anchor in one hand, resting upon the Bible, and a globe in the other hand. A winding stairway commences on the inside of the shaft at its base, which emerges at the outside, to be guarded by a bronze railing, in which are a hundred or more silver stars, intended to show that many stars are yet to be added to our flag. Below is a slave mother and child from whom the chains have just fallen, and she is pointing her child upward to Lincoln and to America as the hope of her race. At another point of the star is a colored and white boy building a block house together, showing the destiny of the two races to build together hereafter. In front of the tomb the lion and the lamb are lying together. On another point of the base stands a red man with arms folded, gazing with astonishment on the scene, showing by contrast the past, the present and the prospective. Another group represents civilization and commerce, &c.

ments should be connected; that each one should represent a different stage in the progress of the great cause of human Freedom, the one the hour of trial, the other the hour of triumph; and that all the accessories in both should be in consonance with these main ideas. He has, therefore, in his design of the Lincoln monument selected a STAR as the base, representing the complete triumph of the holy cause for which the "great Liberator" gave his life. In the Lovejoy monument he wishes to embody as the main conception the suffering endured by the pioneers in the same cause; he has, therefore, selected a CROSS as the form for the base, as best expressing that idea. The two monuments would then represent two stages in the progress of the cause of which they are typical, which might be termed together the "Cross and the Crown." Taking a cross with each section of an oval shape, as the form of the base, which, of course, would rest upon a suitable foundation, Mr. Volk would erect upon the square formed by the junction of the main and transverse sections a sarcophagus some 3 or 8 feet high, in which to deposit the remains of the martyr; this would be surmounted by a statue of Liberty with an anchor and a Bible at her side. Upon the four projections of the cross would be placed

This beautiful and significant design, will, in all probability be adopted for the National Monument to the great Emancipator.

Mr. Volk has an immature conception in his mind of a design for the Lovejoy monument, which he intends submitting to the directors, the main ideas of which he stated to the members of the association yesterday. He considers that the ideas embodied in the Lovejoy and Lincoln monugroups of statuary, one of which would represent Lovejoy taking a negro by the hand and pointing him to the statue of Liberty above them. The other groups would be equally significant. The total height of this monument would be forty or forty-five feet from the ground; the material to be of Athens or Grafton marble, and the foundation of stone from our own quarries. The cost would come within the sum the Association think can be raised. We have given but a crude outline of the sculptor's conception; and it is as yet incomplete in his own mind, but he has promised to furnish us for publication, an elaborate description at an early day. The conception shows a full appreciation of the subject, which aided by the sculptor's genius, will doubtless produce a significant and beautiful design. Other plans will also, we understand, soon be presented for the consideration of the directors, and we are certain that their taste, judgment and love they feel for universal liberty, will enable them to select a design worthily commemorative of the name and fame of Elijah P. Lovejoy, and the cause for which he died a glorious martyr.

ALTON, ILLINOIS, December 15, 1864.

At a meeting held in this city on the 25th of November, of persons favorable to the erection of a Monument to ELIJAH P. LOVEJOY, the undersigned were appointed a committee, with discretionary power, to take such steps as we might deem necessary to secure the permanent organization of a Monument Association.

In the prosecution of this purpose, we address this circular to the old friends of Mr. Lovejoy; to those who sympathized with his efforts to maintain the free discussion of Slavery; and to the crowd of witnesses who have risen in these latter days, to bear testimony against the sin and curse of our nation.

We appeal to you, whether old or new friends of the doctrine of Freedom for all men, to join us in the erection of a suitable testimonial to the memory of the "first American Martyr to the Freedom of the Press and the Freedom of the Slave."

It is proposed by the committee to call a meeting at Alton, about the first of February, of the friends of this enterprise at home and in other States, and to proceed to organize a LOVEJOY MONUMENT ASSOCIATION, with corporate powers and suitable officers; and then to proceed to execute the work in a manner worthy of its purpose.

Before taking further action however, we respectfully invite the counsel and co-operation of friends of the undertaking, and will be thankful to receive any suggestions by letter or otherwise, they may have to offer.

W. C. FLAGG,
L. A. PARKS,
M. G. ATWOOD.
